Ri Ra Irish Pub reopens

February 26th, 2010 by Priscilla Tsai in Food News, Smorgasbord

After being closed for nine months due to damage from a fire, Ri Ra Irish Pub, located between 5th and 6th Streets on Tryon Street, is finally reopening their doors.

Sparkley chandeliers, new wood work, and furniture made and shipped from Ireland, along with the previous decor that was able to be salvaged from the fire and smoke damage, add new life to the pub.

Those aren't the only changes – the menu has changed a bit too. Their fish is fresher (never frozen), their chips (aka fries) are hand cut, and the menu has a new look. I stopped in today for lunch and here's a peek of what Ri Ra looks like now.

They open their doors to the public for lunch and dinner on Tuesday, March 2.

Oh yes, did I mention that they have a new crew of waitstaff straight off the plane from Ireland? Be sure to check out the cute accents.
